

Safety-First Reopening Strategy

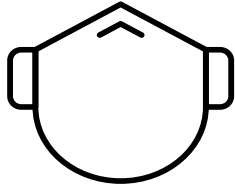

The Boston Public Market looks forward to welcoming you back!

We believe that reopening is important both to keep our small New England businesses viable and to ensure access to safe, healthy, local food for all of our visitors. However, the public's health is of the utmost importance and we will be vigilant in doing everything we can to ensure a safe return for all.

What We're Doing:

- 1 Operating at 50% of our building's maximum permitted occupancy.
 - o This will be achieved with limited entry doors open to the Market and monitored via our electronic door counting system.
- 2 Encouraging social distancing between individuals wherever possible.
 - o Require physical barriers at all vendor point of sale stations where physical distancing is not possible.
 - o Install social distancing markers on our floors that encourage visitors to remain at least six feet apart, especially when in line to order or pay for products.
 - o Create directional floor signage that requires all foot traffic to travel in one direction.
- 3 Opening an Outdoor Plaza seating area where guests can enjoy food items purchased from the Market.
- 4 Discontinuing any self-service food stations such as salad bars and condiment stations.
- 5 Increasing cleaning protocols including frequent sanitization of all surfaces.
- 6 Increasing customer access to hand-washing and hand-sanitizing stations.
- 7 Implementing daily health screenings for all staff entering the Market.
- 8 Upgrading our HVAC system to improve filtration and ventilation.

What You Can Do to Help:

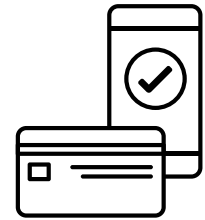

Wear a mask! A face covering is required to enter and shop in the Market.

Only remove your mask when dining at one of our designated tables - located on our new Outdoor BPM Patio on the Greenway Plaza. Please immediately replace mask when done eating.

Follow all social distancing protocols, including one-way directional aisles and 6' feet floor markers while waiting in lines.

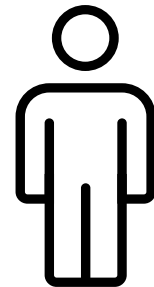

Use touchless payment methods, when possible.

Refrain from touching items that you do not intend to buy. Please ask our vendors for assistance - they will be happy to help!

Make use of hand washing and hand sanitizing stations placed throughout the Market - just look for the signs!

At this time, please only visit the Market for efficient shopping trips. No loitering.

If you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to reach out at the email address below. To view our full Reopening Plan, which has been reviewed and approved by the City of Boston, please visit: bostonpublicmarket.org/reopening
